

It is vitally important to our American democracy that the media not come under the control of a few giant companies who would then be in a position to dictate what kind of news coverage and political opinions are spread across the country.